- Statement 1 is incorrect: The Dominions were autonomous communities within the British Empire which were "equal in status" but had an "allegiance to the Crown". The Simon commission had promised 'Dominion Status' for India in 1929, but the Government of India Act did not confer it. The Act did not even mention the Dominion status.

- Statement 2 is correct: In the provincial elections of 1937, Most of the Muslim seats were won by regional Muslim parties. The Regional parties kept the League out of power in those provinces with Muslim majorities. The Muslim League performed miserably in Sind, Punjab and the North West Frontier Province, and not too well in Bengal, a fact that negated its claim of being the sole representative of Muslims. The Congress ministries also did not succeed in attracting the Muslim votes. Most of the 26 seats the Congress captured were in NWFP, Madras and Bihar. So, neither the Muslim League nor the Congress represented Muslims.

Q.51) Ans: B

Statement 1 is correct: The Cripps mission was a failure and Stafford Cripps returned home leaving behind a frustrated and embittered Indian people. After the departure of Cripps, Gandhi framed a resolution calling for British withdrawal and starting of a non-violent and non-cooperation movement.

The Congress Working Committee meeting at Wardha (July 14th, 1942) accepted the idea.

Statement 2 is correct: The Quit India Resolution was ratified in the AICC Meeting at Gowalia Tank, Bombay (8th August, 1942). The meeting resolved to,

1. Demand an immediate end to British rule in India.
2. Declare commitment of free India to defend itself against all types of Facism and Imperialism.
3. Form a provisional Government of India after British withdrawal.
4. Sanction a civil disobedience movement against British rule.
5. Gandhi was named as the leader of the struggle.

Hence statement 4 is correct.

Statement 3 is correctly mentioned: The reasons were several for the Quit India movement.

-Failure of the Cripps mission to solve the constitutional deadlock exposed Britain's unchanged attitude on constitutional advance.

-There was popular discontent because of rising prices and shortage of rice, salt etc and because of factors such as commandeering of boats in Bengal and Orissa. There were fears of Britain following a scorched earth policy in Assam, Bengal and Orissa against possible Japanese invasion.

-News of reverses suffered by the British in south east Asia and an imminent British collapse enhanced popular willingness to give expression to discontent.

-The manner in which British evacuated from south east Asia leaving the subjects to their fate and the plan of the leadership of the nationalists in India to condition the masses for a possible Japanese invasion.

Q.53) Ans: A

Statement 1 is correct: The British government had taken the adamant position that no constitutional advancement could be made till the congress came to an agreement with the Muslim leaders. It issued ordinance and promulgated it many times resulting in taking away the freedom of speech and that of the press and the right to organize associations.

Statement 2 is correct: The demand of the satyagrahi would be the freedom of speech against the war through anti-war declaration. If the Government did not arrest the 'Satyagrahi', he or she would not only repeat it but move into villages and start a march towards Delhi, thus initiating a movement which came to be known as the "Delhi Chalo Movement".

Statement 3 is incorrect: Towards the end of 1940, the congress once again asked Gandhi to take command. He began taking steps which would lead to a mass struggle and initiated a limited Satyagraha on an individual basis by a few selected individuals in every locality.

Vinoba Bhave was the first to offer the Satyagraha and Nehru, the second. By may 1941 around 25000 people had been convicted for individual civil disobedience.

Statement 4 is correct: Followings were the aims of launching individual Satyagrahas.

- To show that nationalist patience was not due to weakness.
- To express people's feeling that they were not interested in the war and that they made no distinction between Nazism and the double autocracy that ruled India.
- To give another opportunity to the Government to Congress' demands peacefully.

Statement 1 is incorrect: The underground activities were undertaken by almost all the groups/sections present at the society at that time. The socialists, Forward Bloc, Gandhi ashramites, revolutionary terrorists, and local organizations, all formed a single unit and worked together. Both men and women from all over the country took part in it.

Statement 2 is correct: Usha Mehta started an underground radio in Bombay. This was meant to keep up popular morale by continuing to provide a line of command and guidance to distribute arms and ammunition.

Statement 3 is correct: The Tamralipta Jatiya Sarkar functioned from December 17th, 1942 to August 8th, 1944 at the Midnapore district of Bengal. It undertook cyclone relief work, sanctioned grants to schools, supplied paddy from rich to the poor. It was dissolved on the explicit directions of Mahatma Gandhi, taking note of the end of the Quit India Movement. Bidyut Bahini was the force of this parallel government. The other two were at Balia under Chittu Pandey and at Satara under Y.B Chavan and Nana Patil as Prati sarkar.

Statement 4 is correct: Active help was provided by the businessmen (through monetary and shelter aspects), students (acting as couriers), villagers (refusing to cooperate with the administration), pilots and train drivers (by delivering bombs and other sensitive materials), government officials (by passing secret information). Women, especially school and college girls actively participated (Aruna Asaf Ali, Sucheta Kriplani, Usha Mehta to name a few.)

Statement 5 is incorrect: There was no such instance of communal clashes, Muslims helped by giving shelter to underground activists. The Muslim Government servants, especially those belonging to lower levels in police and administration, participated resulting in erosion of Government loyalty. Peasants of all strata irrespective of caste lines were at the heart of the movement and there was absence of anti-zamindar violence.

Statement 1 is correct: The element of spontaneity was higher than any of the movements India saw till now, also the Congress was ideologically, politically and organisationally more planned and active. The great significance was that the movement placed the demand of independence on the immediate agenda of the national movement and after the Quit India movement, there could be no retreat. The movement established the truth that it was no longer possible to rule India without the wishes of the Indians.

Statement 2 is correct: Although martial law was not applied, the repression was severe. Agitating crowds were lathi charged, tear gassed and fired upon. The number of those killed is estimated at 10,000. The press was muzzled, the military took over many cities and there was severe police repression. Rebellious villages were fined heavily and in many villages, mass flogging was done.

Statement 3 is correct: In February 1943, Gandhi started a fast as an answer to an exhortation by the government to condemn violence, the fast was directed against the violence of the state. The popular response to the news of the fast was immediate and overwhelming- protests were organized at home and abroad through hartals, demonstrations and strikes. To endorse this at the government level, three members of the viceroy's executive council resigned.

Exp:

In the famine of 1943, the worst affected areas were south west Bengal comprising the Tamuk, Contai, Diamond Harbour region and Dacca, Faridpur, Tippera and Noakhali (present day Bangladesh). Around 1.5- 3 million people perished in this basically man made famine. The famine was heightened by the presence of epidemics and malnutrition. Though the primary reason for the famine was shortages of rice due to bad harvest and the cyclone that hit the area during that time. The fundamental causes of the famine were as follows.

- The need to feed the vast army, diverted the food stuff. No action from the British government to control the local situation.
- Restriction on rice imports from Burma due to the occupation of Burma by Japan in 1942.
- Famine got aggravated by gross mismanagement and deliberate profiteering, the rationing method was belated and confined to big cities only. Hoarding of rice stocks by traders and farmers in anticipation of speculative rise in rice prices in future as rice shortage was becoming evident.

Hence statements 1, 2 and 3 are all correct.

W. Churchill was quoted as blaming the famine on the fact that Indians were "breeding like rabbits", and asking how, if the shortages were so bad, Gandhi was still alive.

Statement a is not correct: After the failure of Gandhi-Jinnah talks, an attempt was made by the Congress and Muslim League leaders to find out a way out of the deadlock after the Rajagopalchari formula. The congress representative of central assembly Bhulabhai Desai and his Muslim League counter part Liaqat Ali Khan met up and came with the following proposal.

- An equal number of persons nominated by Congress and Muslim League in Central Legislature.
- 20% seats reserved for minorities

Although no settlement could be reached between the Congress and the League on these lines, the fact that a sort of parity between Congress and the League was decided upon had far reaching consequences. So the above statement is a part of Desai - Liaqat pact and not under Rajagopalachari formula.

Statement b and c are mentioned correctly

Objective of the Rajagopalachari formula was to solve the political deadlock between the All India Muslim League and the Indian National Congress. Muslim league opined that muslims and hindus of British India were of two separate nations and hence the muslims had the right to their own nation. The Congress was opposed to the idea of partitioning India. The core principle of the Rajagopalachari formula was a proposal for the Congress to offer the league that the Muslim state based on plebiscite of all the peoples in the region where muslims are in majority. The main features included:

- The Muslim league would support the congress's demand for complete freedom and then majority provinces would go to plebiscite especially north eastern provinces.
- At the end of war, a commission would demarcate those contiguous areas in North Western Frontier Provinces and North Eastern India where Muslims were in majority.
- The terms would be binding only in case of transfer by Britain of full power and responsibility for full governance of India.
- The Muslim league endorsing the Congress demand for full independence and cooperating with it in forming an interim government in the transition period.

Lord Wavell, the Governor General of India, with a view to resolve the deadlock in Indian politics set forth his plan which is famously known as the "Wavell Plan" (1945). The provisions of the plan are as follows:

- Formation of an interim Government before proceeding for the work of framing the constitution.

Hence, statement a is incorrect.

- The proposed interim government was to have a balanced representation of the main communities including an equal proportion of muslims and caste hindus. Hence, statement b is correct.

- All the members of the Central executive council barring the Governor General and the Commander-in-Chief were to be Indians. Hence, statement c is incorrect.

With a view to discussing the proposals with the Indian political leaders, Wavell summoned a conference at Shimla on 25th June, 1945. All the members of the Congress working committee were released and a conference of representative political leaders was called. The council was to function as an interim Government within the framework of the existing constitution and as per it the Viceroy was to exercise his veto power on advice tendered by the ministers. Hence, statement b is correctly mentioned.

Jinnah, flatly refused to cooperate in the Shimla conference. He was determined to undermine the conference unless it agreed to his own terms. One of these terms included the demand that Muslims not belonging to the league could not be appointed to the executive council. Congress President, Abul Kalam Azad was firmly opposed to any such arrangements. Hence, statement c is correctly mentioned.

Soon, ordinary people joined the ratings, and life came to a virtual standstill in both Bombay and Calcutta. There were meetings, processions, strikes, and hartals. - Device a machinery to draw up the constitution of Independent India.
- Make arrangements for an interim Government.
- The mission was like a declaration of India's independence. The mission spent around three weeks to discuss with the leaders of various political parties, but could not arrive at any agreed solution.

Hence, statements 1, 2 and 3 are all correctly mentioned.

In order to achieve its objectives, the Mission issued its own proposals on May 16th. Some of the salient features of the Mission are as follows:

- The Cabinet Mission recommended an undivided India and turned down the Muslim League's demand for a separate Pakistan.
- It restricted the communal representation.

Statement 1 is correct: The end of the World War -II resulted in a change in balance of global power structure. Britain was no more a power while the United States Of America and former USSR emerged as superpowers and both favoured freedom for India.

Statement 2 is correct: Officials feared another mass revolt, a revival of the 1942 situation but much more dangerous than the previous one because of a likely combination on attacks on communications, agrarian revolts, labour troubles, army mutiny joined by government officials and the police in the presence of INA men with some military experience.

Statement 3 is correct: There was an anti-imperialist wave in South East Asia. Various instances of countries revolting and getting independence from European colonizers. For example in Vietnam and Indonesia-resisting efforts to replant French and Dutch rule.

Statement 4 is correct: Throughout Europe, there was a wave of socialist and radical government that had its effect on Britain also. The economy of Britain was shattered after World War -II and its soldiers were tired, weary and suffering from various ill effects of the war. Britain thought it would be best to consolidate after the war rather than to invest in India to prevent a major revolt.

Statement 5 is correct: Due to past promises made by the British Government in India, elections were inevitable once the war ended. The British would have had to retreat and the Labour Government only quickened the process to save itself from economic and other responsibilities.

Ramsar convention

- It is the intergovernmental treaty that provides the framework for the conservation and wise use of wetlands and their resources.
- The Convention was adopted in the Iranian city of Ramsar in 1971 and came into force in 1975. February 2 is World Wetlands Day, marking the convention's adoption on 2 February 1971.
- The secretariat of the Ramsar convention is based at the headquarters of the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) in Gland, Switzerland.
- The Convention uses a broad definition of wetlands. It includes all lakes and rivers, underground aquifers, swamps and marshes, wet grasslands, peatlands, oases, estuaries, deltas and tidal flats, mangroves and other coastal areas, coral reefs, and all human-made sites such as fish ponds, rice paddies, reservoirs and salt pans.
- Every three years, representatives of the contracting parties meet at the Conference of the Contracting Parties (COP), the policy-making organ of the convention. Last-

COP13 was held in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, in October 2018.

Edge computing

- Edge computing enables data to be analysed, processed, and transferred at the edge of a network.

- Here data is analysed locally, closer to where it is stored, in real-time without latency, rather than send it far away to a centralised data centre. So whether you are streaming a video on Netflix or accessing a library of video games in the cloud, edge computing allows for quicker data processing and content delivery.
- The basic difference between edge computing and cloud computing lies in where the data processing takes place
- At the moment, the existing Internet of Things (IoT) systems perform all of their computations in the cloud using data centres.
- Edge computing, on the other hand, essentially manages the massive amounts of data generated by IoT devices by storing and processing data locally.

The World Happiness Report, 2021

- With the pandemic wreaking havoc across the globe, this years' report provided two different sets of rankings — one was the usual list based on the the average of three years of surveys taken in 2018-2020 by Gallup, while another focussed solely on 2020 to understand how Covid impacted subjective wellbeing.

- Finland has been declared the world's happiest country for the fourth year. Whereas Afghanistan remained the least happy country in the world, as per the list.
- India ranked 139th out of the 149 countries in the list — a slight improvement since last year, when it was ranked 140th.

- Statement 1 is correct: Hydrogen is a clean fuel that, when consumed in a fuel cell, produces only water. Hydrogen can be produced from a variety of domestic resources, such as natural gas, nuclear power, biomass, and renewable power like solar and wind. These qualities make it an attractive fuel option for transportation and electricity generation applications. It can be used in cars, in houses, for portable power, and in many more applications. Hydrogen is an energy carrier that can be used to store, move, and deliver energy produced from other sources.
- Statement 2 is correct: Hydrogen fuel can be produced through several methods. The most common methods today are natural gas reforming (a thermal process), and electrolysis. Other methods include solar-driven and biological processes. Thermal processes for hydrogen production typically involve steam reforming, a high-temperature process in which steam reacts with a hydrocarbon fuel to produce hydrogen. Many hydrocarbon fuels can be reformed to produce hydrogen, including natural gas, diesel, renewable liquid fuels, gasified coal, or gasified biomass. Today, about 95% of all hydrogen fuel is produced from steam reforming of natural gas.
